1.4 Experience of Volunteers on their Own Words:

I worked in the women’s empowerment programme and found all the women to be so lovely and welcoming. The process of empowerment is a slow one, but VIN is successfully achieving their aims within the women’s groups. Vegetable farming in particular has increased income and empowered women with their own money-making skills, making them feel more self-reliant.”

“Though short, my 2 weeks with VIN and the Jitpur community has already impacted my life in a big way. I have learned so much more about the culture and way of life of the Nepali people by living with them and working with the local women. The women empowerment program that I was assigned to has great potential to develop into something much bigger.”

“During the 4 weeks I spend in Nepal, I supported the teachers in one of the Early Childhood Development classes, placed in the Secondary School from Nagarjun. I assisted three teachers in the ECD class. The days in the school started with a program for Personal Hygiene and the Nepali class with singing songs, dancing and some exercise. In the following hours we played different games with the children, I helped the children with writing letters and showed them how to built cars and animals.”

“What we did was a good mix of grammar, spoken English and writing. I tried to focus on spoken English which was difficult because as I said, some of them were really shy. Especially the girls’ English was weak and they were the shiest. But I did recognise that it was going to be better till the end. Finally we had some good group discussions which everybody joined.”

“We’ve noticed that the health post lacks health information for the patients. The walls of the waiting room are a great spot to place this information because the patients always wait there some time to be seen by the doctor. So we decided to create posters.”
